About NACB

The National Association of College Broadcasters (NACB) is the trade organization for student electronic media. Founded in 1988, NACB exists so that the student media community will have an accessible resource for advice and information, and a venue for exchanging ideas and innovative concepts. NACB provides educational opportunities for individuals with an interest in media and communications, and offers a wide range of services to meet the dynamic needs of its members. We encourage student stations to attain the highest possible standards, thereby enhancing the communities they serve.

NACB is a member-run, non-profit organization. The Executive Board is composed of students and faculty from member stations. NACB's National Office staff are drawn from the student media and non-profit sectors.

Conferences

The vision of NACB is realized through its commitment to bring together the students and faculty whom it serves. NACB conferences offer a unique forum for students and media personnel to learn from each other through seminars and workshops.

College Broadcaster

Respected by students and professionals alike, College Broadcaster is a member-only publication covering news that affects the educational community. Highlighting changes taking place within student media, the magazine offers a comprehensive mix of articles and features geared towards radio and television managers and staff in every department of the station.

U Network®

U Network® is creative, young and on the edge. The student-produced, affiliate-run national satellite network for student television brings the best of student programming to campuses hungry for entertainment and issues that affect them.
